In God We Trust

“...and can the liberties of a nation be thought secure when we have removed their only firm base, a conviction in the minds of the people that these liberties are of the gift of God? That they are not to be violated but with His wrath? Indeed I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just; that His justice cannot sleep forever.”

— James Madison, Third President of the United States

The Bible is the best of all books, for it is the word of God and teaches us the way to be happy in this world and in the next. Continue therefore to read it and to regulate your life by its precepts.

Psalm 33:12a

CHURCH LAWS

There is no discussion in these legal declarations... These are not individual opinions, declarations of private persons; they are organic (legal, governmental) utterances; they speak on behalf of the entire people... These are not the words of many masters which might be noticed, added a volume of unessential declarations to the mass of organic utterances that this is a Christian nation.

The Americans combine the notions of Christianity and of liberty so intimately in their minds that it is impossible to make them conceive the one without the other.

Upon my arrival in the United States, the religious aspect of the country was the first thing that struck my attention; and the longer I stayed there, the more did I perceive the great political consequences resulting from this state of things, to which I was unacustomed.

In France I had almost always seen the spirit of religion and the spirit of freedom pursuing courses diametrically opposed to each other; but in America I found that they were intimately united, and that they reigned in common over the same country.

Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD

I you any man be considered as a member of a civil society, he must be considered as a subject of the Governor of the Universe.

Signer of the Declaration of Independence

“An appeal to arms and to the God of hosts is all that is left us!... Sir, we are not weak if we believe this, and I also believe that without His concurring aid, we shall succeed in this truth: That God governs in the affairs of men. If a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, it is probable that no one can rise without His aid!”
