In God We Trust

Presidents

"It is the duty of all able-bodied citizens of the United States to obey the laws of the land, and to support and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic."

George Washington, First President of the United States

"We have no government armed with power adequate to protect us from the attacks of others, nor from the attacks of our own people."

John Adams, Second President of the United States

"If we constrain the people of this nation to submit to a government which they do not wish, or if we declare that the people are compelled to suffer the consequences of their own folly, we shall be as much at fault as if we had forcibly restrained them from doing that which they wished to do."

Thomas Jefferson, Third President of the United States

"Every nation must be allowed to have its own form of government, and every nation must be allowed to have its own form of religion."

James Madison, Fourth President of the United States

Founding Fathers

"An appeal to arms and to the God of hosts is all that is left us. . . . We are not without hope of success."

Thomas Jefferson, Declaration of Independence

"In the providence of God we must depend for our security."

James Madison, Federalist No. 51

"I know not what course others may take; but as for me, I am determined to follow God's path."

John Adams, Autobiography

Supreme Court Justices

"The Bible is the best of all books, for it is the word of God and teaches us the way to be happy in this world and the next. We therefore have a right to read and to regulate our lives by the precepts contained therein."

Chief Justice John Marshall, 1807

"The Constitution of the United States is not a document in which the government is everything, but in which everything is subject to government."

Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1913

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

John Adams, Declaration of Independence

"The Constitution of the United States is not a document in which the government is everything, but in which everything is subject to government."

Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1913

Constitutional Court Rulings

"In God we trust."

Mentioned in the Pledge of Allegiance

Education

"Let every child be given the opportunity to learn and to grow."

Chief Justice John Marshall, 1807

Foreigners

"Let every nation have the right to determine its own destiny and to govern itself."

Chief Justice John Marshall, 1807

Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord

Psalm 33:11

If my people who are called by My name will humble themselves, and pray and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land.

2 Chronicles 7:14
